The rivalry among the different institutions was so keen that each hesitated to inaugurate the reform. In March, 1899, the Mississippi Valley Trust Company reduced its rate from 4 to 3 per cent as an experiment, but as other companies were advertising to pay 4 per cent that company lost so much business that in December, 1899, it was forced to re-turn to the payment of 4 per cent interest on deposits.

on deposits.

For several weeks bankers and trust company officials have been informally discussing the matter, and it was evident that the time was ripe for uniform action. Yesterday it was learned that some of the trust companies had decided to pay no more than 3 per cent on savings deposits and certificates of time deposits. The other trust companies fell into line and the rule became general.

De Lacy Chandler, secretary of the Mississippi Valley Trust Company, said that the company was forced to reduce the rate because it was losing money on that class of business. He said that where customers were unwilling to leave their money at 3 per cent the company was finding them investments in glit-edged securities, which would net them at least 4 per cent interest. "The reduced rate of interest with us went into effect this morning on new business." said Mr. Chandler, "but our present depositors will receive 4 per cent until December 1, the next interest period."

Charles Hamilton, secretary of the Lincoln Trust Company, said that the decreased rate had been decided upon at a meeting of the Board of Directors yesterday afternoon and would take effect at once.

Thomas H. West, president of the St.

Thomas H. West, president of the St. Louiz Trust Company, said that his com-pany had been paying only 3 per cent on denosits.

will be disbarred from privilege of second-class rates in the mails after the issuance of the proposed order rigorously construing the law regarding such matter. It is said that all sublications now using the mails are supposed to be legitimate and that if any of them are disbarred in the full return the action will not be taken without a hearing of the case.

The interest which the proposed action of the department has created is shown by the large increase of letters upon the subject received in each mail. Advertisements and circulars of alleged fake publications are arriving daily and was being in the subject received in each mail. Advertisements and circulars of alleged fake publications are arriving daily and was being that after the order had been issued, the Postmasters of the various cities will be called upon to decide whether all the publications now passing through their offices are entitled to a continuance of the second-class rates. If the decision is against the publications, the latter will receive notice of proposed restriction and opportunity will then be afforded to make good its claim for a continuance of the privilege. This hearing is a legal right, and as it will undoubtedly be insisted upon in each case, the officials of the department look forward to an immense amount of work.
